In his 1954 article, Flanagan presented a sample critical incident collection protocol, which looks much like those used today. It asked "What were the general circumstances leading up to the incident," "What [did] this person [do] that was so helpful at the time," and "Why was this so helpful in getting your group's job done?" (Flanagan, 1954, p. 342).

Flanagan's practice test is much closer to the actual difficulty level of the real exam. I used several different third-party practice exams. This one is almost as good as the official practice exam. I should have purchased it sooner. Pairs well with his reference book, "Cram for the Professional Engineer Electrical and Computer Power Exam."
